DETAILED ACTION

This action is final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Reisch (2002/0164825).

Reisch shows the claimed subject matter where two conical rollers (2, 3) have between them an idler (7) which moves along the axes of the rollers to effect a change in ratio of the transmission in an infinitely variable fashion; the transmission is driven by an engine (11) through a clutch (1), through the conical friction transmission and out to a pick-off gear (see figure 2, the gear at the output of roller (3)), then through a differential (4) and out to the device to be driven.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 1/21/09 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that Reisch fails to show "at least two continuously variable transmission parts". This is not persuasive since continuously variable transmissions are made of many parts, certainly more than two. Applicant also argues that the transmission parts are "parallelly disposed in a gear train". Reisch satisfies this limitation since the two conical rollers (2, 3) are in a parallel relationship.

Conclusion

4. The following are suggested formats for either a Certificate of Mailing or Certificate of Transmission under 37 CFR 1.8(a). The certification may be included with all correspondence concerning this application or proceeding to establish a date of mailing or transmission under 37 CFR 1.8(a). Proper use of this procedure will result in such communication being considered as timely if the established date is within the required period for reply. The Certificate should be signed by the individual actually depositing or transmitting the correspondence or by an individual who, upon information and belief, expects the correspondence to be mailed or transmitted in the normal course of business by another no later than the date indicated.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
